Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1- 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Johnson et al (4,651,564) (hereinafter Johnson).

Johnson teaches a flow speed measuring sensor comprising a housing; a carrier membrane disposed in the housing and being essentially in a form of a vane having a circumference and at least one edge region (Fig. 3A); holding elements (support element of the substrate on the right) arranged over a portion of the circumference connecting the vane to the housing so that only the at least one edge region the carrier membrane is subjected to mechanical stress caused by the housing; and an electrically conductive track (26) with feed lines installed on the carrier membrane in a region of a neutral fiber for the carrier membrane which does not experience a mechanical strain when the carrier membrane is bent, the electrically conductive track being adapted for being heated relative to the environment by an electrical current flowing through electrically conductive track. The carrier membrane comprises two layers (28, 29) composed of the same material and the same thickness and the conductive track is disposed between the two layers.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Johnson.

Johnson shows all the features of the instant invention as claimed except for the slight sagging of the membrane. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide sag in the membrane since such sagging would prevent strain on the membrane in case sudden temperature rise is experienced and thus there would be an extreme deformation to the housing. In this case the membrane would have enough length to stretch.
